26 May 1839 priest London 'for the cure of souls in Her Majesty's foreign possessions' (cathedral S Paul) (6;50)
Note: New Zealand was not a British colony in 1838 and 1839; while his ordination 'for the cure of souls in Her Majesty's foreign possessions' was canonically regular, his appointment to New Zealand on the strength of this ordination's description was irregular for New Zealand was not a possession of Her Majesty. His appointment to the cure of souls in New Zealand was in effect made regular only when Britain assumed sovereignty in New Zealand with the treaty of Waitangi in 1840. This detail around the authorisation of his ordination raises the question of British attitudes to New Zealand territory before 1840 and to the imperial annexation of New Zealand. (MWB and 111)

Jan 1910 with strong commendations from the bishops of London (Arthur WINNINGTON-INGRAM) and of Colchester (Robert Henry WHITCOMBE) BURTON was nominated as their rector by the parish of S James King Street Sydney (vice CARR-SMITH); the Sydney diocesan nominators consulted Eugene STOCK also in London, the historian of CMS and specifically of the New Zealand Church Missionary Association, who advised them that he was an extreme Ritualist (= mass vestments and incense) – which brought unanimous rejection of him by the Sydney nominators. However it was public knowledge that the parish of Christchurch S Michael was then under offer to BURTON

(BURTON had raised £40 000 for the parish during his years as priest S Saviour;

See article 'Cast Away' in Harper's New Monthly Magazine, 1866 pp724-732 : which claims that for a little over two years this English clergyman had been living alone on a plot of Māori land called Opipito, near the Bay of Islands, trying to establish church and community links with local Māori;
19 Aug 1859 he went fishing off Cape Brett; near the Black Rocks his main mast broke and he was blown away and then marooned on one of three small uninhabited islands for five months and ten days. For some of the time a Māori, named MONGANUI was with him; he was picked up by two English sailors on a passing schooner and returned to the pier at the Bay of Islands whence he had embarked.
- As Harpers was an American magazine, he may have gone to the USA after disappearing from the Bay of Islands; but if so, he does not appear in the earliest clergy directories of the Episcopal Church (Mar 2007, MWB)
1862 author of article From the Black Rocks on Friday in Charles DICKENS' weekly All the Year Round. (pers comm May 2013, researcher Catharine Ferguson of Kerikeri)

Lest CASTLE's time in the short-lived archdeaconry of Northern Melanesia (in the diocese of Melanesia, province of New Zealand) be lost from sight he is included here.
Ordained after 1930 he is included in the Blain Biographical Directory as he was serving in the diocese of Melanesia before the Second World War. After the Second World War the so-called Mandated Territory (part of the German empire until World War 1) became part of the Australian Anglican church. From that date thus re-defined the diocese of Papua New Guinea became an affiliated diocese in the province of Queensland Australia. Before that date CASTLE had departed the Mandated Territory and in consequence CASTLE has no place in the Cable Clerical Index of priests in the Australian church. (MWB)

08 Aug 1933 ordained bishop by Bishop Daniel Cassell HINTON of the 'American Catholic Church' as bishop for the diocese of the Pacific in the 'Liberal Catholic Church of Antioch'
Note on this episcopal ordination
The various little churches in these ecclesial associations made much of the legitimacy of the apostolic succession of their orders. This episcopal ordination was seen to be in the Syrian succession of apostolic orders through Joseph René VILATTE self-styled archbishop of the 'Old Catholic Church of North America', who had been consecrated 29 Mar 1892 in Colombo Ceylon by Archbishop ALVAREZ a prelate of a splinter group of the South Indian Syrian Orthodox tradition.
VILATTE ordained indiscriminately maybe as many as twenty bishops including (19 Dec 1915) a former Episcopal priest Frederick Ebenezer LLOYD, the 1st bishop in this particular line.
LLOYD ordained (27 Mar 1927) HINTON to be his successor as 2nd primate of the 'American Catholic Church'; he established an 'Order of Antioch' (ACC).
HINTON succeeded (1932) to LLOYD, and was (1933) president of the 'American Catholic Community Church' council (ACCC) and thus was the one to ordained CLARKSON into this apostolic line. (392;internet)

Note on the Free Church of England
1844 the Free Church of England was initiated in Devon as a low-church protest against the dictates of the Tractarian High-Church Henry PHILLPOTTS bishop of Exeter with support from the duke of SOMERSET
31 Aug 1863 the 'Free Church of England' registered civilly, but without a bishop
1873 the Reformed Episcopal Church set up in New York USA by George David CUMMINS previously assistant bishop of Kentucky
1876 the Free Church of England received episcopal orders from Bishop CUMMINS of the Reformed Episcopal Church of the USA
1879 at Philadelphia Alfred A RICHARDSON made a bishop of the Reformed Episcopal Church of the USA;
but on being judged bankrupt fled to England to a branch of the Reformed Episcopal church but failed in plans to unite this group with the Free Church of England.
RICHARDSON was involved with James MARTIN and Leon CHECHEMIAN 'primate of the United Armenian Catholic Church and archbishop of Selsey in the Ancient British Church', who initiated groups like the 'Free Protestant Episcopal Church of England', which was distinct from the Free Church of England (392;391)
1879-1900 Samuel James Cox DICKSEE DD (1836-1900) incumbent of Christ Church Crowborough Kent and from 1876 first bishop of the Free Church of England
1927 the Free Church of England and the Reformed Episcopal Church formally united; the church very positive towards Freemasonry
1960 the Free Church of England had some 40 churches in England under the primus Frank VAUGHAN DD (consecrated in 1913)
1973 a more Conservative Evangelical group in protest broke with the Free Church of England and bought DICKSEE's church of Christ Church Crowborough
2003 the Free Church of England had some 24 congregations (2014: 19 congregations in England, none in New Zealand) in two dioceses in England and 4 in New Zealand
2004 in reaction to overtures of cooperation to the 'Anglican Province of America' (which included some AngloCatholic groups) the Free Church of England split into a church of very Conservative Evangelicals and a church of more open Conservative Evangelicals. NOTE on these churches

1933 Bishop Daniel HINTON became the president of the American Catholic Community Church council (ACCC) which might include but did not then subsist in the 'Liberal Catholic Church of Antioch'.
CLARKSON was a prelate in the 'Liberal Catholic Church of Antioch', which was a parallel and similar jurisdiction to (but distinct from) the Liberal Catholic Church International (LCCI) of North America, which itself was a split initiated by Frank Waters PIGOTT archbishop of the Liberal Catholic Church (LCC). (See Frank Waters PIGOTT in this BIOGRAPHICAL DIRECTORY for he too had been a priest in the Anglican diocese of Auckland.)
1951 WADLE received the additional duties of Mar David 1 (vice W D de Ortega MAXEY) as patriarch of Malaga, archbishop primate of all the Iberians and supreme hierarch of the catholicate of the west in the Americas when MAXEY shed these tasks to become pastor of the First Universalist Church of Los Angeles (391)
These churches and their prelates interchanged names, prelatures, and properties over several generations. I cannot discover whether the line specifically represented by Archbishop CLARKSON continues into the twenty-first century.
However:
Nov 2009 Bishop Simon Eugene TALARCZYK taking services weekly at S Francis-by-the-Sea (information Starr Helms, author of history of Episcopal church of S Mary, Laguna – the adjacent Episcopal church)
2010 Simon TALARCZYK their pastor for some 38 years had succumbed to Alzheimer's disease and the church had been locked up by his daughter claiming family ownership
Feb 2012 A liberal group the American Catholic Church in California had stepped forward to open the doors, and had appointed the Revd Brian DELVAUX priest of their church in Lakewood to take over S Francis cathedral. DELVAUX (1974) a Roman Catholic priest had converted to the American Catholic church.
16 Feb 2012 However Peter HICKMAN the presiding bishop of the Ecumenical Catholic Communion and pastor at S Matthew Ecumenical Catholic church Orange was chosen (by 32 church members associated with the S Francis cathedral but voting by proxy) to be the interim bishop for the parish to remove the very aged Simon TALARCZYK and evict DELVAUX. The California courts considered the case.

While he will have had a clerical appointment on ordination, he appears to have lived on the substantial family estate at Ballydavid in south Tipperary – this and poor health would explain his broken clerical career. The memorial gift from his children suggest that he and they valued his priesthood and his death noted as 'priest' suggests the same (MWB)

Positions

came from All Saints Auckland
1908-1913 lay missionary (supported by New Zealand Church Missionary Association [NZCMA]) temporarily in charge San Cristobal [Makira] and Ugo (Pawa) diocese Melanesia (389) – his reports in the Southern Cross Log show he was a leader in training the singers at S Barnabas Norfolk Island.
CRAWSHAW was the last to be supported by NZ CMS as a missionary in Melanesia; these white missionaries were to be appointed by the bishop of Melanesia in consultation with the officials of New Zealand CMA. The initial call of Bp GA SELWYN to evangelise in the islands was continued in this initiative, and the popular financial support for the work of the Melanesian Mission (based in Auckland) did not (as had been feared) suffer from this new group's initiatives. The NZ CMS saw itself as fulfilling in local terms the same policies as the English CMS, which formally embraced an Evangelical piety. Tensions grew: the New Zealand CMA wished to be a separated missionary society, not accountable within the synodical provincial structures of the New Zealand Anglican church. A bill to form a provincial board of missions was pushed back at the general synod meeting in Nelson (ca 1912) for discussion at the diocesan synods. Only after much resentful discussion, 02 Oct 1919 the New Zealand Anglican Board of Missions began its life. The presenting issue was the question: who controls the missionary agencies? The societies themselves or the Anglican church? W SADLIER the new bishop of Nelson (vice MULES) was more willing for the general synod and thus the church of New Zealand to be the overall responsible authority: this brought splits within the Evangelical supporters of CMS. O KIMBERLEY as general secretary for the New Zealand CMS was a strong supporter of the principle that the Societies work within the church and not on their own. (421;208)
07 Dec 1913-1915 curate New Plymouth diocese Auckland (278)
Jul 1915-Oct 1916 missionary priest (sponsored by NZCMA Church Missionary Association [from 1917 NZCMS]; the last to have this sponsorship as conflicts about churchmanship brought withdrawal of CMS sponsorship of New Zealand missionary recruits to work in the diocese of Melanesia) at Norfolk Island diocese Melanesia (421;26)

May 1919-1920 based in Christchurch, travelling secretary NZCMS [formerly NZCMA], briefly assisted by WW BEDWELL (208)

organising secretary for NZCMS under New Zealand Board of Missions (91)
but
c1920 in protest at financial support for others than Evangelicals, he went to court against the NZ CMS, with funding support by the Revd F SAMPSON, also an exclusive Evangelical and he was sacked for his opposition to the support of NZ CMS leadership given to the Board of Missions agreement to associate the NZ CMS with the other missionary agencies, the diocese of Melanesia, the diocese of Polynesia, the Chinese Mission in New Zealand, the North China Mission (Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts [SPG]), Jerusalem and the East mission (421;208;69)
Mar 1920 wrote to CMS (New Zealand) requiring their immediate response to his offer to work in Northern Japan: however when his doctor advised on health grounds against his wife's going, he stayed back (328)

He manifested the leaven of Popery and has on this account been requested by our Bishop to return to England….This dismissal has greatly rejoiced me. Still there are some particular points to which a change remains desirable. I refer to intonation of prayers and the two candlesticks at the Collegiate Chapel….the Cathedral services at home…were alleged by our Bishop as grounds for the practice. Intonation would take well with the Natives; some of my own congregation asked me already about it, but I have given them a most decided refusal.' Comment: a bishop in England (sometimes Canterbury, sometimes London for it too had an historical link of responsibility with the isolated Anglican churches overseas, could agree to ordain a man on the understanding that he would go to 'the colonies' and not stay on in England; however, while New Zealand was a colony (from 1841) it was a dominion (from 1907); the Church of England continued to use the old terminology for the English Church had little self-governing authority and obsolete formal legislation remained in place.
