the Fielden Taylor Hostel in Taranaki Street Wellington was his memorial from 1940 until it was sold in 1995. Were his name still on that hostel, later generations would have their attention drawn to this man as societal changes now expect re-examination of sexually-peccant clergy. I find it significant that the Church authorities set up a supervisory board. Despite his court case, a large crowd (7 000) turned out for his funeral ten years later. (Julia Stuart Jul 2019) (33)

Canterbury Association 27 Mar 1848 member;
06 Feb 1851 management committee, member Ecclesiastical committee Land purchase:
CM Torlesse bought 700 acres in the Mandeville district, Rangiora Bush;
several members of his family including his son Charles Obin TORLESSE a surveyor with Captain Thomas of the Canterbury Association bought land and farmed around Rangiora.

Notes on NZ connections:

A long-term friend to Canterbury settlement and its hopes to found a truer freer Church of England and a kindly feudal society, Charles Martin TORLESSE was among those proposed as bishop for Lyttelton. He attended meetings regularly as a member of the Ecclesiastical committee of the Canterbury Association. To the colony, he sent his son Charles Obin TORLESSE, employed (1848) as a surveyor mapping in Canterbury; he worked in Nelson province before farming in North Canterbury. And Henry, later ordained priest by Bishop HARPER, who had a brilliant brief ministry with a strong social commitment. His daughters Priscilla and Frances came to Canterbury, where Frances was a church social worker (warmly appreciated by Bishop Harper), and subsequently a founder deaconess of the women's religious order which later became the Anglican religious order Community of the Sacred Name (CSN). Charles Martin TORLESSE urged local honest yeomanry of Suffolk to migrate as well—among the few to accept the suggestion was Charles MERTON the village boot-maker, whose sons became important in Canterbury education, music making, and the church; Thomas MERTON the twentieth century Cistercian spiritual teacher was a descendant. The Torlesse range and river in North Canterbury, took his family name; Stoke near Nelson took the name of the village where he was so long the vicar; Sir Charles Ricketts ROWLEY baronet of Tendring Hall presented (1864) a bell for Stoke, Nelson. S Mary the Virgin church, at Stoke-by-Nayland has a memorial stained-glass window for Charles TORLESSE, as well as several windows, memorial to the nineteenth century ROWLEY family. ROWLEYs were patrons of the living.

Personal note

I was good friends in Waikari with his youngest twin boys, especially Richard. When I went to university Richard found me and took me to El Jim, the young people's group at S James Lower Riccarton. He hadn't forgotten I had given him two same sex guinea pigs (males I think) which produced babies. Not a good look for a veterinarian's son.

Jan 1922 obituary Southern Cross Log
His descendant Fr Anderson SAEFOA tells the family story: because of the large number of guns around in the Solomons as men returned from work as indentured labour in Queensland (and Fiji?), Charles TURU's grandfather ABUALA a custom priest was shot out of a nut tree and killed. His family had no guns for retaliation, and they sent ABUALA's grandson Charles TURU with the next recruiters who came by, with instructions that he return with a gun. He was too young to work as indentured labour in the Fiji plantations and was made a domestic servant instead. In that position he was converted to the Christian faith and brought back not a gun but Christianity to his family. He was not well received by his relatives, who were not yet Christian, and he founded his church at Fiu at a distance from them. He also brought the kava ceremony that sometimes is enacted in the custom house. (pers comm Fr Anderson Saefoa, Aug 2015)

05 Jul 1825 Joseph TWIGGER was charged at the King's Bench Westminster by Miss Elizabeth COLE for an alleged breach of promise of marriage. Elizabeth COLE was from a wealthy family in Leicester, whose father had died in 1817, her mother in 1819, and the guardian to whom she had been committed, Mr NEWBOLT brother to Colonel HULSE, died soon after that. Since 24 Jun 1823 she had been boarding in the home of Mrs PRING, who lived three houses away from Mrs PEERS [PEARS] and her second husband, Captain PEERS. She had soon met at the home of his mother in Coleshill, Joseph TWIGGER. He was on vacation from Oxford where he was reading for holy orders (under pressure from his mother rather than from his own desire). Elizabeth COLE found Joseph to be a 'young man of fascinating manners'; she knew that he as the eldest son would inherit an income of about £300-400 a year. (His mother's farm of 85 acres was leased at £150 a year.) She believed his attentions to be honourable, and that he intended marriage. His love letters did not declare intention of marriage (but do evidence his betting on his great enthusiasm, boxing) and were considered by the chief justice to be 'rhapsodical nonsense'. The Revd John PARKER an associate of TWIGGER when he was at Coleshill gave evidence that TWIGGER had not stated any intention of marrying Elizabeth COLE. A month before she gave birth on 10 Sep 1824, Mrs PRING had thrown her out of her house to avoid disgrace to herself and had been harboured by Mrs TWIGGER. Joseph TWIGGER had disappeared when this news reached him. Elizabeth COLE had sent the police to arrest him so that he might affiliate the child. They found him now a married man living at Kingston-upon-Hull East Riding Yorkshire, for on 10 Dec 1824 at St Leonards Shoreditch London he had married a widow, Catherine LAWTON. On his arrest Joseph TWIGGER had accepted the bastardy bond for the affiliation of the child. However, during the trial another local young man Charles DICKINS was accused of also having a sexual relationship with Elizabeth COLE, establishing the argument that she was a woman of loose morals. His mother stood firmly with her son Joseph TWIGGER. The defendant was 'non-suited', which means that the plaintiff had failed in her attempt to prove breach of promise. (411)
21 Dec 1832, the Revd Joseph TWIGGER was called as a prosecution witness in the trial of the 'Nuneaton rioters'. This case was about national franchise reform, buying votes, local politics, and violent behaviour. He ran away to avoid the street rioters, and when hiding behind a curtain in his room, TWIGGER heard them calling out that they would get the 'parson of Bulkington', himself. (411)
04 Sep 1843 the Revd Joseph TWIGGER of Kensall Green London contributed £5 to the National Society for the Promoting of the Education of the Poor (411)
1855 see the Christchurch coroner's report; an habitué of the White Hart hotel, late at night on heading home fell into the River Avon and drowned. A cabbie Stephen BROOKER found his body.
1891 On the death of Charlotte TWIGGER the widow of his late cousin John TWIGGER was his heir, his estate worth £16 000 was bequeathed to the Old Men's Home in Ashburton, and the Anglican church-sponsored Female Refuge (for women having illegitimate babies) and Orphanage Christchurch

Note on the position of the bishopric of Polynesia

16 Aug 1921 On the resignation of Bishop TC TWITCHELL, the status of the bishopric was considered: whether to attach it now to the province of New Zealand or to the church of Australia. The proposals to have under the bishop of Melanesia (resident in the Solomon islands) three suffragan bishops, one of whom would be the suffragan bishop of Tonga and Polynesia, were mooted in the New Zealand Board of Missions and the Australian Board of Missions, as well as with JM STEWARD the bishop of Melanesia and the English Melanesian Committee

06 Feb 1925 at Dunedin New Zealand general synod of the province of New Zealand 'associated' the diocese of Polynesia with the church of the Province of New Zealand as a missionary diocese like Melanesia (261; minutes of general synod; New Zealand Church News, 69)

1921-1925 rector Buxted co Sussex diocese Chichester

02 Sep 1925 announcement, E W BRERETON rector of Toynton Lincolnshire and K H MacDERMOTT rector Selsey Chichester to exchange benefices with Bishop TWITCHELL rector Buxted Sussex formerly bishop in Polynesia (411)

1925-1934 rector and vicar Selsey (patron bishop of Chichester) Sussex (209)

1941 residing Ightham Sevenoaks Kent (8)

Other

'friend and former curate to Arthur WINNINGTON-INGRAM' (1897-1901) bishop of Stepney, (1901-1939) bishop of London (202) – which is a curious claim as WINNINGTON-INGRAM was never parish priest where TWITCHELL was curate, and was no longer bishop of Stepney when TWITCHELL was (1903-1908) at All Hallows East India Docks. As bishop of London (1901-1939) he had nominal responsibility for such isolated Anglican ministries as that in Fiji. His cooperation ensured the formation of the new see based in Fiji.

Again, Charles WHONSBON-ASTON states TWITCHELL was related to Richard Twitchell MATHEWS, and that these kinsmen fell out severely. Doubtless they fell out but a family connection is not found. (MWB 2002,2009)

[he was a great source of humour – when I was curate in New Plymouth, he visited his friend from Suva days Archdeacon Michael BENT. It was my turn to preside at morning eucharist – when I came to the peace, I greeted them with "friends" as we were struggling with the sexist and archaic term "brethren." Michael retorted "I'd sooner be your brother than your friend." I replied that it was quite scriptural, as Jesus had addressed the disciples as friends in John's Gospel. Meanwhile at the back of the chapel John-Charles raised his hands in the air "Saints, saints." From then on, the peace at St Mary's began with "Saints, we are the body of Christ!" RAB]

1894 Bishop JR SELWYN noted 'WADROKAL was one of the earliest of Bishop PATTESON's scholars. When his own Island of Nengone was given up to the London Mission[ary Society] he elected to follow him. He was ordained after his death, and worked with zeal, though not always with discretion, at Savo, Ysabel, and Santa Cruz. For the latter group he volunteered, beseeching most earnestly that he might be the first to stay on the Islands where his 'father' Bishop PATTESON had been killed. Latterly his health broke down, and he retired on a small pension to his own home. Though in some ways he was unsatisfactory, yet his courage and faith were very notable.' (261)
2012 diocese of Ysabel renamed their catechist training centre the 'Mano Wadrokal school of theology and ministry' to recognise his pioneering work in Isabel (pers comm Dr Terry BROWN)

Note on tabernacle
c1955 Bishop WARREN ordered the removal of tabernacle from the high altar Christchurch S Michael; on its installation on the north wall of the adjacent Pilgrims' chapel, a brass plate was set in the high altar reredos in the vacant place where the tabernacle was once secured, 'The tabernacle was removed by the order of the Lord Bishop of this diocese, Pray for the peace of Jerusalem'. This plate was removed by order of that angry bishop, and C GAULT publicly apologised.
1963 the week after the retirement of C GAULT as parish priest Christchurch S Michael, WARREN ordered the churchwardens to remove the tabernacle from the church itself and to replace it with an aumbry; the tabernacle was accepted by JC VOCKLER bishop in Polynesia for the cathedral Suva (1970 pers comm. Isla Hunter, previous headmistress Hukarere Māori girls' college Napier). (2012 it was not seen to be in the cathedral in Suva pers com PO Williams)

obituary 22 Oct 1942 Nepean Times (Penrith)
NOTE: in 1922 Revd Gwilym Elwyn WILLIAMS was charged with forging his own death certificate (14 Mar 1922 page 6 Evening Star)
he left for Canada in 1918 allegedly with another woman to join the Canadian air force. Apparently, his father forced him into the marriage.
He sent a death certificate and personal belongings as the Revd E PICKERING to fool his wife into thinking he was dead. It backfired when she applied for his life insurance and the Revd E PICKERING who supposedly sent the note with the certificate was proven not to exist.
He pleaded guilty to charges and received 9 months imprisonment with hard labour in Regina Prison (08 Feb 1922 Pall Mall Gazette)
Again he obtained a curacy as Revd Gwyndyr WILLIAMS at S Mark Dalton, then suddenly he sailed for a mission in South America.
When the vicar of S Matthew Canonbury Road North Auckland England fell ill he was engaged to perform pastoral duties. At the time he was engaged to another woman! When he received complaints the Bishop of Stepney investigated WILLIAMS's credentials from the Bishop of Minnesota to find they were forgeries. Then he vanished. (New Zealand Herald 19 Dec 1927 page 2 supplement)

Note on ordination as deacon:
Neither place, nor year, nor bishop for his ordination as deacon is actually given by WILLS. This reticence is unexpected in a man who from other accounts enjoyed self-promotion. A possible motive for this silence is unravelled below.
1865 Family information (from a 1922 newspaper interview with WILLS in Melbourne) has him ordained in England in 1865. This is not true.

Jun 1866 The history of the diocese of Bloemfontein says Joseph Harris WILLS left England for the Orange Free State to join the first bishop for the missionary diocese of Orange River Free State. Bishop Edward TWELLS ordained him deacon after arrival in South Africa. See Some Account of the Diocese of Bloemfontein by Archdeacon CRISP (Oxford: James Parker 1895)
Jul 1869 Charges of sodomy were prepared against Bishop TWELLS, who under a pseudonym fled South Africa for Britain. TWELLS resigned the see 02 Aug 1869, died 04 May 1898 Clifton Bristol
Embarrassment might have inclined WILLS to avoid later reference to his ordaining bishop. (For background information, see N SOUTHEY 'Uncovering Homosexuality in Colonial South Africa: the case of Bishop Tweels' in South African Historical Journal No.36, May 1997; see also the SPG history by PASCOE, which obscures identity of TWELLS, referring to him as the bishop of the Orange River, a missionary of the Society, and to his resignation (47))
1870-ca Jun 1872 Church registers have WILLS baptising in S Alban Pretoria. His ministry as a deacon was clearly acceptable to the successor to TWELLS, Allan Becher WEBB, (from 1870) 2nd bishop of the diocese of Bloemfontein, previously diocese of the Orange River Free State.
1881 has his very first appearance in Crockford: 'J H WILLS, formerly incumbent of Green Ponds diocese Tasmania, incumbent of Forth and Leven.' - but has no information on his ordinations, nor of his years in South Africa, nor of his brief ministry in the diocese of Christchurch New Zealand. Without alteration the identical entry repeats annually to 1885, even though he had left Forth & Leven after a scandal, in 1881;
1886 edition of Crockford gives him (erroneous) Christian names 'John Henry';
1889 edition of Crockford lacks contemporary information, 'formerly incumbent of Green Ponds';
1890-1915 editions of Crockford omit his entry altogether. (8)
1916-1923 editions of Crockford show him restored to the status of licensed priest in the diocese of Tasmania – he had been out of church ministry since 1881. Crockford now has 'Joseph Harris WILLS, of Whitemark Flinders Islands Tasmania Australia, deacon and priest 1873 Christchurch. Formerly incumbent of Green Ponds 1876-1878; Forth and Leven 1879-1882. 1915- vicar Furneaux islands diocese Tasmania.' (8)
Thus in his last years (from the evidence of his entry in Crockford) WILLS claimed to have been ordained both deacon and priest in 1873 by HARPER the bishop of Christchurch. This is certainly incorrect, for HARPER, on accepting his ordination as deacon in South Africa, ordained him priest. HARPER was conscientious and his registrar would have checked the ordination papers of WILLS before proceeding to the priesting.
His removal of any reference to his ordination as deacon in South Africa is the climax of his consistent intention to obscure his years in South Africa from church view. Was this a life-long avoidance of the disgrace of his bishop, Edward TWELLS? (MWB)
Claims
1865-1872 FAMILY INFORMATION (2006) gathered from South African newspapers and from a Melbourne newspaper interview in 1922 has various claims. For instance -
WILLS claimed to have been ordained deacon 1865 in England, and then to have gone to South Africa first as the travelling chaplain to the bishop of Cape Town. - Not true. He was not ordained in England. In Jun 1866 he came to South Africa with the support of Robert GRAY metropolitan bishop of Cape Town and was at once ordained deacon by Edward TWELLS (born 1828 died 1898) the first bishop of the missionary diocese of Orange River Free State. GRAY had sent in TWELLS to sort out the problems with JW COLENSO, deposed from the see but remaining in it. (MWB;CPSA Archives, Wits University Library, Witwatersrand 2006).
WILLS claimed to have preached in the cathedral church of Pietermaritzburg. - True. Mar 1867, his Ritualist bishop Edward TWELLS of Orange River Free State with the licence of Robert GRAY the Tractarian metropolitan bishop of Cape Town, had intruded him as 'curate' into the cathedral church of Maritzburg, cathedral for the diocese of Natal. The Liberal JW COLENSO the deposed (and even excommunicated) bishop of Natal went to court to have WILLS (and other challengers to his authority) removed. See The Life of John William Colenso DD Bishop of Natal, by the Revd Sir George W COX baronet, MA rector of Scravingham, (W Ridgway, London 1888; WNL)
'In 1867 the Bishop of Natal [COLENSO] prayed the Supreme Court for an order interdicting the Revd JH Wills from officiating in any churches of the Colony set apart for the use of the Church of England and Ireland, until he had obtained the licence of the Bishop of the Diocese. The order was refused on the ground that the plaintiff had no status as Bishop…' - from the biography of Dean GREEN of Maritzburg (CPSA Archives, Wits University Library, 2006)
WILLS claimed that for three years and more at the request of the bishop of Bloemfontein and to explore possible places for church development, he went through the Transvaal goldfields and through to Matabeleland and visited Great Zimbabwe, and claimed to have been the first white man to have climbed the hills of Matopos - in what was to become colonial Southern Rhodesia (and later independent Zimbabwe) before his return to South Africa. - this is only related to the truth (MWB).
From about Oct 1869, WILLS went for maybe six months (not three years) to visit the goldfields and through to Victoria Falls and the Zambesi. (In Jul 1869 his bishop TWELLS had fled the country to avoid arrest. See below.)
Was WILLS extending the period of his visit to the interior to distance himself further from TWELLS?
While he may well have visited these places, by no means was he the first white man to have climbed Matopos hills (MWB and Neil PIERCE, who did this themselves and easily as have so many).
WILLS claimed that he returned briefly to England in 1872 and did deputation for the SPG and lectured at the Royal Society on his discoveries in Southern Africa - may be true (MWB).
Until mid-1872 WILLS was signing the baptismal register at S Alban Pretoria. The SPG history refers to the 2nd bishop, now 'of Bloemfontein' not 'of the Orange Free State' as performing clerical duty at Pretoria for three months in the absence of Mr WILLS in England (47)
In 1872 WILLS' return to England was certainly 'brief' for he and his wife were swiftly accepted by the commissary for the bishop of Christchurch, Prebendary Henry TUCKER at the SPG office in Westminster, and they quickly sailed on to New Zealand (70;MWB).
WILLS claimed that when secretary to Bishop COLENSO in the diocese of Natal he had been a close friend of Sir Henry Rider HAGGARD and been so helpful with his research for the novel King Solomon's Mines that an early edition of the book was dedicated to him in appreciation of his assistance. Untrue (MWB).
WILLS was hostile to Bishop COLENSO and was himself an intruder into the cathedral of Natal diocese.
WILLS however was close, possibly even at some point secretary, to his own diocesan bishop Edward TWELLS, but when in Jul 1869 TWELLS fled the country with sodomy charges pending, WILLS expunged all reference to any connection with TWELLS.
WILLS' claims of African friendship with Rider HAGGARD are untenable, as HAGGARD came to South Africa first in 1875, whereas WILLS had left South Africa in 1872 (MWB).

Positions

Jun 1866 Mr Joseph Harris WILL left England (Anglicanhistory.org/africa/za/crisp_bloem02.html)

31 Dec 1868 for the first half of 1869 the Revd J Harris WILLS was announced to be conducting the grammar school in Bloemfontein. (Friend of the Orange Free State and Bloemfontein Gazette, provided by family information)

1869 at Philippolis missionary diocese of the Orange River Free State. This statement is from his initial papers given in 1873 to Prebendary TUCKER in London and thus reported to the bishop of Christchurch in New Zealand but contradicts the contemporary evidence that in 1869 he was conducting a school in Bloemfontein, and travelling into the interior (Transvaal gold mines, Victoria Falls and the Zambesi River). Furthermore, there is no record of any appointment to Philippolis. The diocesan history says WILLS had initially an itinerant appointment, visiting villages across a wide district. Positions

1916-1928 examining chaplain bishop Bathurst (8)
12 Oct 1927 nomination announced, to be the second assistant to the bishop of Melanesia, bishop for Northern Melanesia, i.e. the Mandated Territory of New Guinea, included in the diocese Melanesia; nominated by a committee of the Australian Board of Missions; the diocese to include Bougainville, islands to the north-west off the coast of Papua, and Rabaul; he would start work in the Gasmata district - he is noted as being 'exceptionally strong in health' (261)
24 Jan 1928 His consecration in Australia needed to be delayed until AVERILL the primate of New Zealand was (with a change of the canon achieved at (Apr 1928) general synod) enabled to issue the necessary mandate for the consecration of WILTON in Australia (and not New Zealand) (261)
Nov 1927 the Bathurst diocesan council (president Bishop LONG) decided to continue WILTON's normal stipend and pension contributions for him while he was overseas; he thus continued to be a member of the diocese of Bathurst
n d MOLYNEUX bishop of Melanesia visited WILTON in Bathurst (261)
12 Mar 1928 with Bishop FM MOLYNEUX, arrived for (19 Apr 1928-01 May 1928) general synod Auckland SOUTHERN CROSS: asked for support for the Melanesian appeal, acknowledging that the diocese needed £10 000 per annum operating costs - particularly for the aging MV SOUTHERN CROSS V (261)
04 May 1928 departed Auckland with FM MOLYNEUX, the Revd LE CARTRIDGE, the Revd GF LEGGATT, Mr D Lloyd FRANCIS (later a priest) and others, after attending general synod of the New Zealand province
30 Jun 1928 attended the diocesan synod at Siota Solomon islands (at which FM MOLYNEUX presiding was unanimously nominated to be the successor to JM STEWARD retiring bishop also present) before proceeding to Sydney for consecration:
Jun 1928 (assistant) bishop of Northern Melanesia, for the New Britain islands (then within diocese of Melanesia, now in the nation and church of Papua New Guinea); the isolated 500K stretch of coastline in the Gasmata district on the southwestern end of New Britain became his mission: 'disastrous' appointment
Aug- Sep 1928 publicity tour of parts of Australia (261) including
15 Aug 1928 women's meeting in S Gabriel Ainslie Canberra
28 Sep 1928 from Sydney MARSINA, arrived Rabaul, with staff the Revd V SHERWIN (who arrived just before he did), the Revd LE CARTRIDGE (the first recruit from England for the new initiative), and Mr Stanley G TITLER carpenter (a theological student, later ordained Australia): he made visits to Gasmata (near here was to be the main centre for the see), Lindenhafen, Salamau, and stations were to be initiated at Kalerigi, Navalapua, SagSag, Arawe; he planned a visit to England for 1930 (261)
Jan 1929 while travelling around the diocese taken ill at Toma, 40k from Rabaul, and returned thither. Bishop MOLYNEUX declared illness to be 'sunstroke' (261)

Feb 1929 though much better was to voyage to Sydney to recuperate (261) - but did not go to Sydney at once:
01 Apr 1929 Southern Cross Log announced he was ill and may need to retire (261)
18 Apr 1929 at Gasmata, on board the government schooner HERMES wrote of contact with new areas of New Britain and is about to visit V SHERWIN - no mention of illness nor of going to Sydney (261)
19 May 1929 after but six months in the diocese, arrived Sydney MORINDA on mission business – and probably stays in Australia without returning to New Guinea
01 Jul 1929 resignation accepted: he had broken down in health, been ordered to return to Australia, had set out, but felt better: and continued his work (of which he wrote in Apr 1929); the Auckland office of the Melanesian Mission had no information beyond that - he might be ill temporarily
http://Anglicanhistory.org/oceania/blain_mandated_territory.pdf
Note: Bishop MOLYNEUX made reference to the appointment of WILTON in his annual report, indicating that WILTON intended to begin work among the natives in 1929 (Jul 1929 (261))
13 Jul 1929 press report Sydney that he had resigned after a 'paralytic stroke' in the islands
09 Aug 1929 annual report of the Melanesian Mission Finance Board (in Auckland) regretted that WILTON 'unable to continue' (261)
Sep 1929 MOLYNEUX now bishop of Melanesia had accepted WILTON's resignation because of his state of health; his friend the Revd Leslie WALKER from Bathurst was due to join the staff at the end of 1929 (261)
n d 1929 resigned following allegations of sexual misconduct with youths, but 'utterly broken down in health' with 'sunstroke near Rabaul' – no further comment, neither thanks nor good wishes are offered, and against him no charges were brought in church or civil court (111;202;163;280)
However: in the private file of Major ROBINSON general manager of the Melanesian Mission office (first in Auckland; 1933 in Sydney): reference to the 'caddish behaviour' of the Australian Board of Missions [ABM] towards WILTON: the reason given here for WILTON's 'forced resignation' was a series of sexually explicit letters written by 'ladies' to WILTON: when brought to the attention of the ABM these were deemed grounds to request his resignation. ABM subsequently subverted attempts to 'rehabilitate' WILTON - ROBINSON had not in fact seen the letters (Church of Melanesia archives, Honiara, Solomon Islands, information from T Brown Jan 2009)

16 Jan 1913-28 Jan 1913 attended 19th general synod, Nelson; this synod formally decided that the phrase 'member of the Mission' should be rephrased to mean 'priest of the [Melanesian] Mission; this was relevant for the electoral process in selecting any new bishop as the 'members of the Mission' had voting rights

Southern Cross Log ABM review announcement: 'The Bishop feels unequal to the immense difficulties of the work, and of the special problems which have gathered around the work of the Melanesian mission. He has endeared himself to us by his deep spiritual qualities. The Bishop is remaining at Maravovo College, Solomon islands [under JM STEWARD first theological college established there], and the Revd Paley WILSON is acting-administrator.' (261)
30 Apr 1919-12 May 1919 Acta of 21st general synod of the province of New Zealand: bishop of Auckland (AVERILL) as chair of the select committee proposed that the diocesan staff had adopted the only course open to them to obtain an adjustment of their legitimate grievances against their bishop; and advised the staff of this sympathy and invited proposals for the future conduct of the Mission; the select committee on the affairs of the Melanesian Mission reported (09 May 1919) that they had considered the statement of the Bishop of Melanesia submitted to the Archbishop of Canterbury, had heard the administrator of the diocese of Melanesia, and unanimously agreed that the staff had adopted the only course open to them to obtain an adjustment of their legitimate grievances; they had considered the suggestions of the English Committee, the chairman of the Australian Board of Missions, and the Administrator of the diocese of Melanesia, and suggest that the staff of the Melanesian Mission be informed that the Church in New Zealand was prepared to consider with sympathy such proposals as they might make as to the future conduct of the Mission and requested formulation of their proposals to be submitted to a Commission of General synod to be set up.

Southern Cross Log editorial comment: often in poor health, difficulty in keeping the work going, had not seen his way to make his headquarters in the islands; duties called him away from the ordinary work in the islands, and from lack of encouragement the island work suffered. [He was personally and particularly distressed at the tragic unnecessary deaths of missionaries LONG, SAGE and others.] The Maravovo conference carried a unanimous vote of dissatisfaction at the bishop's non-residence in the islands and his inability to adapt himself to the needs of the Mission.

Other

On the strength of his pamphlet on church colonization, James Cecil Wynter was the first priest proposed for the projected bishopric of Lyttelton.
However, the objection of his wife Mary (died 1852) to colonial life ruled him out.
In 1849 George Frederick Boyle, 6th earl of Glasgow, founded the College of the Holy Spirit on the island of Great Cumbrae in the Firth of Clyde. The college, opened in 1851, consisted of five canons and seven choristers, who enjoyed Gothic revival buildings designed by the Tractarian architect William Butterfield in full conformity with the principles of the Ecclesiological Society. James Cecil Wynter was one of these canons; but no information is to hand of the nature of his involvement with this Tractarian semi-monastic initiative. George's cousin and successor, David Boyle, the 7th earl of Glasgow was (1892-1897) governor of New Zealand.
James Wynter's brother the Revd Philip Wynter was from the old-style High church tradition and grew hostile to the development of the Tractarian enthusiasms and challenges to the older tradition. Thus Philip Wynter, caught in his political role as a vice-chancellor of Oxford University, was a leader in the heavy attack (1843) by the University of Oxford on the Catholic revival leader, Dr EB Pusey. Yet Philip Wynter, still a Highchurch loyalist, edited (in 1863) the works of Joseph Hall, a complicated man with a warm devotion to Our Lady, was bishop (1641-1656) of Norwich. His career and actions provide a useful example of how the Oxford Movement had split apart the previous less defined patterns of Highchurch loyalty. The prosecution by leading academics of Oxford of the respected Pusey illustrates the nature of the sharp divisions which the Oxford Movement and the subsequent AngloCatholic revival had meant for the looser loyalties of the old Highchurch tradition. These splits among the Wynters continued and deepened—Philip's son Colonel AL Wynter became a Roman Catholic in 1881; and the colonel's son Guy Wynter became the organist at the Birmingham Oratory, of which the famous Cardinal JH Newman was the founder member. Newman as the vicar of S Mary the Virgin, the parish church of Oxford, was the first inspiration and leader of the Oxford Movement; and his going over to the church of Rome had upset the confidence of his followers. Some followed on into the church of Rome, others stayed back, rebuilt their loyalties to the church of England and put their Newmanite days behind them. Others again copied the faith and practice of the Roman Catholic church, hoping in this way (by replicating the strengths of the church of Rome), those hankering for the church of Rome would now find the same strengths within their own church of England.
