OLYMPIC MOVEMENT

SPORT & DISCIPLINE TECHNOLOGY CODES

Version 2.7
2 July 2026
Approved

1 INTRODUCTION

The IOC has identified the need to standardise the coding of sport disciplines, which is driven by several key requirements:

- IOC Technology – to ensure consistency and coherence across historical results databases (HORD).
- ORIS Project – to facilitate efficient electronic data exchange between Games organisers, Technology Service Providers, International Federations, National Olympic Committees, Continental Organisations, ODF recipients, and the IOC.
- International Federations – to support easier identification and archiving of disciplines.
- Data users and stakeholders – including World News Press Agencies (WNPA), broadcasters, and other data users, who rely on consistent codes when developing systems and presenting Games information globally.
- Continental Organisations – to align data usage across regions.
- Other multi-sport event organisers – to enable compatibility with Olympic Data Feed (ODF).

2 SPORT DISCIPLINES ON THE OLYMPIC GAMES AND/OR YOG PROGRAMME

A sport is governed by an International Federation and may include several disciplines.

A discipline is a branch of an Olympic sport comprising one or several events.

When defining the codes, some sports have been divided in disciplines but, for a number of reasons, this is not always the case. Where a sport comprises a single discipline, the same code will be used for both sport and discipline.

The goal in defining these codes is to keep them unique, though the Paralympics may use the same codes where the discipline is the same.
