CHAP FIVE

I would love to have dinner with you tomorrow night.
I know you are invited to a posh party and I want to go.

Let's have a drink sometime soon.
I'd rather not see you at all.

Please call me. If I'm not in, leave a message.
I'd rather you didn't.

I'm a creature of habit.
I can't think of anything new.

I just love old friends.
I can't make any new ones.

I'd adore having dinner in your apartment, but not tonight.
I'd loathe having dinner in your apartment.

You are quite good looking, you know.
You're the only game in town.

I just love the way you dress. It is so English.
Must you always carry that umbrella?

I love you.
Do call me when you come to New York.

Do call me when you come to New York.
I plan to be in California.

Do you know Peter Finch?
I know Peter Finch, and want to know if you do.

If we go sailing it would be so nice if we could be alone.
Don't bring your boy-friend with you.

I love to sail, it's so refreshing to feel the wind and the rain in your face.
I loathe sailing and the only way I can keep from getting sick is to stay on deck.

Could we go to a quiet restaurant?
I'd rather not be seen with you.

service

1. Find out the customer's problem--and then solve it.
2. Find out what the customer will need--and then sell it.
3. Find out what the customer will expect--and make sure he gets it: The right quantity, the right size, the right model.
4. Promise a date you can meet--and then meet it.
5. Establish with each customer at the outset (a) what is already included in the regular price, and (b) what kinds of requests may require extra charges. This way you stop complaints before they get started.
- (6) Let me know the results of each one of these five steps. This way, I--and everyone else in the company--will be able to back you up all the way. And this way we'll get repeat business.
